Synopsis

Gabby is an American publicist that is working in Guadalajara for a Mexican inspired clothing company named Catrina. Distance from LA is great as she just broke with her fiancée, Rowan, due to his infidelity.

In Mexico Paco, a young cook that dreams of making it big manages a food truck, a very popular one. Along with his friends Chuy and Eric they are looking for the best. Just in front of their truck works Laura, Paco's sister, she works at the famous Don Juan restaurant. Unfortunately for Don Juan has an issue and the owner needs Paco to help him out to cook for the Catrina team.

From the moment Gabby and Paco cross sights they are attracted, and with the "help" of his friends plus a lot of tequila they end up sleeping at Paco's house. But the next morning all is odd, Paco lives with his Mom, Grandma, and little sister! Gabby just wants to leave, and forget all. But later that day she learns that Paco's truck exploded and she goes to help him. A relationship begins that will take Paco to LA where he will meet his inlaws, Gabby's ex boyfriend and a new culture and language he doesn't speak, but in the end, who speaks love?
