THE JUSTICE LATE, BUT COMES...

Synopsis

The Old Cocks is an ingenious, improvised and geriatric criminal band that has been forced to heist pharmacies in Gran Santiago without firing a single shot. The band consists of Julian, The Raven and Marian, lifelong friends. Why did they rob this pharmacies? because Estela (Julian's wife) is ill and the high cost of her treatment outweighs their economic possibilities. And hopelessly, she'll die. Estela is the soul of the house that houses a diverse group of elders. She has worked for them and others at the Judicial Assistance Corporation. It's her refuge and her life.

At the time of leaving, Estela entrusts The Old Cocks to help the underdogs that she cannot help in life. Thus, The Old Cocks are transform in a peculiar band of outlaws who in each episode investigate, plan and execute a plan to help those who have been let down by the system. In this adventure they will deal with their own personal and family conflicts and although they fear the police less than their prostates: they will soon realize that the law is much closer than they think.

THEY WERE BORN TO WORK IN THE FIELD AND FINISHED SELLING 30 MILLION DISCS.

Synopsis

BRONCO is a transversal band in the broadest sense of the word. In 35 years of career and with 30 million records sold, they have managed to get their followers to break the barrier of classism and cultural differences. Their fans come from all socioeconomic levels and their music is enjoyed equally on both sides of the border. Racism, failures and rejections in chain, genetic poverty and the ignorance that accompanies it, were not enough obstacles for these broncos to curb their path to success.

Their career is full of national and international awards, gold and platinum records, and several tours throughout America and Europe.

BRONCO is a successful brand not only in the musical field but they have also made movies, TV, clothing lines, shoes and comics with sales exceeding 5 million copies.

Bronco are more alive than ever: They said goodbye in 1997 at the Estadio Azteca in front of 110,000 people and returned 20 years later to cram the Vive Latino music festival before 80 thousand fans.

THE PERSON WHO TRULY LOVES YOU, WILL NEVER LET YOU GO.

Synopsis

The Clinic is a psychiatric hospital housed in an old mansion that is headed up by Dr. Cosme Krauss, who ends up becoming a hysterical patient himself due to his persecution mania. At the Clinic there are all sorts of patients whose mental disorders, pathologies and everyday occurrences make the place anything but boring.

Elvicio arrives to The Clinic because his girlfriend, Maripily has him committed there to prevent him from leaving her. From the start, Elvicio tries to escape, but when he meets Lucy, the chief nurse who is an attractive if naïve young woman and the object of Dr. Krauss' affections, he decides to postpone his escape plans.

But what no one counted on is that Maripily checks herself into The Clinic in order to be near to the man she loves. This sets off a double love triangle that has unpredictable consequences. The Clinic also has some other rather peculiar patient: Miguel/Faustino/ Sereno/Navajas a brilliant young man who has an impressive academic career, however he's in conflict with his own conscience that constantly betrays him and takes over him, turning him into a perverse rancher at one moment and into a Colombian from a poor neighborhood at another.

Amid the lunacy, Elvicio ends up being the director of The Clinic with his new love, Lucy. The Clinic, now led by this lazy artist, will have to survive the difficulties of lack of funding, new patients, new romances, insane goings-on and all sorts of other problems.

Insanity that is so much fun would be difficult to find, as life at The Clinic takes on all sorts of entanglements, misunderstandings and mistakes, with the patients and the staff confusing one other, which leaves one to think that the craziest of them all are not necessarily the mental patients!

THE LAUNDRY IS WASHED AT HOME.

Synopsis

"The Shelter" is a dilapidated nineteenth-century house owned by Esperanza, a woman in the full throes of the menopause, whose husband has left her for a Hooters hostess 20 years her junior. Until a few days ago Esperanza lived in ignorant bliss with her unfaithful husband, her senile father who has a physical disability which for the life of him he can't remember how he got it, her daughter Mercedes Yolanda, a.k.a. "The Blister" for obvious reasons and Crescencia the macho maid and a former wrestling pro. Then there's Búlgaro Antonio, Esperanza's spoilt son who has decided to live with his mother at this painful time in her life and save himself a small fortune in rent added into the bargain. A misunderstood folk singer Búlgaro Antonio has just been kicked out of the apartment where he and his Cuban wife lived. Also into the mix is Remora, Esperanza's 17-year-old grandson, who has also joined their ranks because his parents have gone to live in Ciudad del Carmen and do not want him skipping school (although he's been suspended for a month already for exploding a bomb in the bathroom). Mercedes Yolanda, who has been away on a tour of the former Soviet Union, arrives home with Boris her very blonde and very pungent Russian boyfriend who she met on Facebook a month ago and who is currently the love of her life. All these characters live at the "shelter", a house of misfits and hangers-on as Crescencia calls it.

The Shelter is a mirror of a typical dysfunctional Mexican family: an absentee father, an over-protective mother, children who can't let go of their mother's apron strings and their equally unstable partners, not to mention the maid and the grandfather who is forever in the way. All living under the same roof - with hilarious results!

As we get to know the characters we not only become acquainted with their defects and inconsistencies but also the qualities and values that make them who they are and what defines their roles in this strangely lovable family that is constantly in the process of disintegrating and putting itself back together again.

This is a reflection on the importance of family, no matter what form it takes, because as the saying goes, there's no place like home or, in this case, The Shelter.

THE WORLD IS CHANGING.

Synopsis

"The series, written and directed by the prominent producer Carlos Pinto, portrays fictional stories inspired by real-life criminal cases; these are the stories of ordinary people who never imagined of committing a crime.

The stories of "Irreversible" peacefully start in a neighborhood or a town where nothing ever happens. But suddenly, an incident happens which marks the life of the protagonist, destroys peace and brings out the impulse of committing a crime. The heroes are taking a decision that will change their lives forever; there's definitely no turning back.

"Irreversible" is a series of unitary episodes in which different stories are linked with an umbilical cord: a human being facing an abyss and deciding whether to take a step forward or a step back; the first option will inevitably lead the person to becoming a murderer and irreversibly, fall into the void."

GET UP, LOOK TO THE FUTURE AND KEEP WALKING...

Synopsis

Manuela is a 14-year-old upper-middle-class girl who has been abused by her stepfather since her widowed mother decided to rebuild her life. The story begins twelve years after the plane crash where his biological father passed away, when Manu and his family unexpectedly receive the news that they have found his since-lost remains in the Cordillera. The possibility of clarifying the circumstances of the death and considering the pending mourning closed, leads Manu to discover a painful truth: his biological father is not the one who died, but Claudio Andrade (45), his stepfather, the man with whom his mother married two years after being widowed; the man who has sexually abused her since she entered the family.

Faced with an unknown and unexpected story, Manu begins to react rebelliously to everything that surrounds her, moving away from her mother and having to face a lonely adolescence, fearfully hiding her painful secret and living strong experiences that will make her grow up for in order to be prepared to face the abuser, get up, look to the future and keep walking.
