Synopsis

Charly Tango is the story of three passionate flying pilots who work for a very particular tourist agency. The agency's owner is Polo, an enchanting blind man and a very special person, the founder of an air tourist agency. His actual love is Fernanda, a woman of the world, brought up as a true princess. Tomás, one of the co. pilots falls in love with the least appropriate woman, his boss's fiancée to whom he owes everything he is. Even though the three pilots have very different personalities they are inseparable. Unexpectedly a treasure is sent by heaven provoking serious conflicts among them, putting their association to the test. Each one has a plan to spend the fortune. This is going to be the beginning of many of their problems. Tomás is noble, generous and easy going.

He is a pilot, even though he has big financial problems; he has to provide for his family and also afford his mother's continuous squander.... Pablo is a dreamer, a risk fanatic. He dreams about being an acrobatic pilot. He loves adrenaline, he takes risks without caring. There are no rules for him; he loses his sense of responsibility when he is in the air. For the same reason he would like to buy his own plane to be able to fly without restrictions. Álvaro lives his life keeping up appearances. He is such social climber that he has never shared his true background with his friends. He tells everybody that he lives in an exclusive apartment in the best part of town and that he travels to top destinations for holidays. He spends all his money on expensive clothes, shoes and restaurants. His interests, ambitions and suspicions are going to hold a sword over the group's code of honor and endanger their relationship.
