BRONCO is a transversal band in the broadest sense of the word. In 35 years of career and with 30 million records sold, they have managed to get their followers to break the barrier of classism and cultural differences. His fans cover all socioeconomic levels and his music likes equally on both sides of the border. Racism, failures and rejections in chain, genetic poverty and the ignorance that accompanies it, were not enough obstacles for these broncos to curb their path to success.

His career is full of national and international awards, gold and platinum records, and several tours throughout America and Europe.

BRONCO also is a successful brand not only in the musical field but also has made movies, TV, clothing lines, shoes and comics with sales exceeding 5 million copies.

Bronco is more alive than ever: They said goodbye in 1997 at the Estadio Azteca in front of 110,000 people and returned, 20 years later to cram the Vive Latino music festival before 80 thousand fans.
